

TRACKMAN

Trackman is a radar based solution for analyzing a player’s golf swing and resulting ball flight. Trackman is the choice of the PGA Tour and the USGA and has set the industry standard for delivering real time data and graphics on club movement, ball launch, ball flight, and landing. This analysis will provide you and your instructor with the exact data regarding different aspects of your game as well as specific data which will allow you to experience the best club fitting process available on the market. In addition, you will receive vital information to improve any existing swing flaws. The Trackman is currently being used by every major golf manufacturer for fitting and testing equipment. The Woodlands Performance Center is one of the few private clubs in Houston currently utilizing this device.

CLUB FITTING

At the Golf Performance Center we use fitting tools from some of the top club manufacturers in the game. Companies like Titleist, Ping, Mizuno, Cobra, Callaway, Taylor Made, and Edel custom fit putters. By use of these fitting tools along with technology like Trackman Ball Flight monitor, we identify the proper club head style and design, shaft length, shaft weight, shaft flex, shaft characteristics, lie angle, and grip size. As a Performance Center based on quality instruction we have seen that all golfers trying to improve have clubs that fit their body, (height, arm length, hand size), are better prepared to learn the game and progress more quickly.

EDEL PUTTING SYSTEM

"The Leader in Putter Fitting Technology"

The Performance Center uses the Edel putting and wedge fitting process. This system will evaluate the different factors that affect the way a putter aims, posture, technique, and ball position, for example. With the given information it will determine the lie angle, head shape, loft and shaft flex of the putter that would meet your full potential. Wedge fitting is to determine proper loft bounce and sole design.
