

TRACKMAN

Trackman is a radar based solution for analyzing a players golf swing and resulting ball flight. Trackman is the choice of the PGA Tour and the USGA and has set the industry standard for delivering real time data and graphics on club movement, ball launch, ball flight, and landing. This analysis will provide you and your instructor with the exact data regarding different aspects of your game as well as specific data which will allow you to experience the best club fitting process available on the market. In addition, you will receive vital information to improve any existing swing flaws. The Trackman is currently being used by every major golf manufacturer for fitting and testing equipment.

PHYSICAL SCREENING & ASSESSMENT

This analysis, performed by Simon Webb, will identify specific movement patterns that can lead to decreased performance on the course. In addition, by following up with Simon and his training, you will decrease your personal risk for injury over the course of time. Simon has over 10 years of experience screening golfers and elite athletes and feels that this type of assessment can really bring your game to the next level.
